

- In general, I am looking for more than the "right answer". I am looking to see that you can present that solution in a way that makes sense to a reader -- a reader should never be expected to "know what you mean". You should back up statements with evidence. You should use complete sentences where appropriate. You should use good format in presenting your results.
- Work must be shown for credit. Do not just write a number down -- show work where appropriate.
- If you use the graphing calculator to draw a graph, you should sketch the graph with all pertinent information labeled in your homework.
- Most of the data is on the computer in the Moore & McCabe folder, and on the disk that comes with your text, so feel free to use the computer at any time. (To find this folder, see page 13 of the Minitab Commands handout.) If the computer is used for homework, output should be included and clearly labeled when you hand in homework.
- Label problem numbers and sections clearly. Problems should be in order. Be careful when stapling so that problem numbers are still visible! Please label any computer output clearly.
